

Andrew Kueneman
Information, Interactive, & Visual Design
Brooklyn, NY
347 401 1290
andrew@kueneman.com

Work Experience

January 2010 - Present

Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism , NY
Adjunct Professor, Editorial Design for Online News

December 2006 - Present

The New York Times

Editorial Designer - art-direction, design and information architecture for online and mobile pages, applications, features, and multimedia.

February 2005 - October 2006

Admios, San Francisco/New York

Design Director (Interactive & Print) and front-end developer (HTML, CSS, Flex, JS) on projects ranging from a custom suite of applications and printed reports for a major hedge fund to project management applications and other client software. Also lead and executed company branding.

January 2004 - January 2005

IconMedialab, San Francisco

Senior Designer (Interactive & Print) and front-end developer (HTML, CSS, Flash, JS) on projects ranging from a custom suite of applications for hedge funds to websites, government intranets, kiosks, and various promotional materials.

October 2002 - December 2003

Freelance/Contract, San Francisco

Contracted with multiple marketing agencies, software development firms and large & small Clients on a wide range of projects as a designer/art director & developer.

May 2001 - September 2002

Grey Direct, San Francisco

Associate Art Director for online and direct marketing campaigns for clients such as Oracle, Compaq, Cisco, HP, Sun, Network Associates, & Adobe.

1998 - April 2001

Various Contract/Full-time, Boston/San Francisco

ZEFER, Ark Studios, Circle Interactive, Eight Cylinders, Deepend, MFA Boston and others.

Education

B.A. in New Media, August 2000

Emerson College, Boston, MA